

RRSP

Save on taxes now.

See more growth
long term.

A Registered Retirement Savings Plan (RRSP) allows you to build and grow your wealth for retirement in a tax-advantaged way.

The basics:

What you need to know about RRSPs.

Tax-advantaged earnings

With an RRSP, you can deduct the amounts you contribute to your (or your spouse's) plan from your taxable income, reducing your taxes for the year. Plus, no tax is paid on the investment income, dividends or capital gains generated by holdings within your RRSP.

While the withdrawals you make from your RRSP in retirement are taxable, you may by that time be in a lower tax bracket, resulting in additional tax savings.

Compounded growth

The earlier you start saving and the longer you contribute to your RRSP, the more your money is likely to grow, as the following hypothetical example illustrates.

Investor 1	Investor 2	Investor 3
Invests $1,000 a year from age 18 to 27 (10 years)	Invests $1,000 a year from age 41 to 65 (25 years)	Invests $1,000 a year from age 18 to 65 (48 years)
Value at age 65: $291,402	Value at age 65: $78,954	Value at age 65: $529,343

The above examples assume an 8% yearly rate of return and a $1,000 contribution at the start of each year. Investment growth and final results do not reflect transaction-related taxes, fees and expenses. These investment assumptions are provided as an example only. In no way do they guarantee the yield of an investment. The actual yearly rate of return and the investment value may vary based on market conditions.

Contribution limit

There is a limit on how much you're allowed to contribute to your RRSP each year. As of 2021, it's 18% of your prior year's earned income up to a maximum of $27,830, less your pension adjustment (PA) and past service pension adjustment (PSPA).

Age limit

The year you turn 71 is the final year you can contribute to your RRSP. If you and your partner share a Spousal RRSP, you can contribute until the year your spouse turns 71.

Three types of RRSPs

1

An Individual RRSP is registered in the name of the contributor who pays into the plan and uses contributions to reduce personal income taxes.

2

A Spousal RRSP assists couples with unequal savings or income by allowing them to shift retirement savings from the spouse with the higher income and tax rate to the one with the lower income and tax rate.

3

A Group RRSP, offered by many employers, is a grouping of personal RRSPs administered on behalf of employees. Contributions are deducted from each pay, with employers often matching employee contributions.

FAQ

Five questions and answers about RRSPs.

1 How much should I contribute to my RRSP?

While there's no hard and fast rule, contributing about 12% of your pre-tax income each year is recommended, up to a maximum of 18% of your income. The goal should be to contribute enough so that when you retire, you can maintain the same lifestyle you enjoyed while you were working.

2 If I don't use my full contribution room in a given year, do I lose it?

No. If you don't maximize your contributions, you can carry forward any unused deduction room indefinitely. Your carryforward amount is noted on your Notice of Assessment from Canada Revenue Agency.

3 What if I max out my RRSP contributions for the year?

Contributions made in the first two months of the year can be declared for either tax year. If, for example, you don't want the contribution included on your current tax return, simply wait and include the amount on the following year's tax return.

4 What happens to my RRSP holdings when I retire?

In the year you turn 71, your RRSP account is closed and the funds are converted into a source of retirement income in the form of a Registered Retirement Income Fund (RRIF), annuity or a lump-sum cash withdrawal.

5 Can I use my RRSP holdings for something other than my retirement?

Yes. You can withdraw up to $35,000 tax-free through the Home Buyers' Plan (HBP) for a down payment on your first home. You can also withdraw up to $10,000 tax-free per year through the Lifelong Learning Plan to finance full-time training or education for you, your spouse or common-law partner. In both cases, the borrowed funds must be repaid to your RRSP account within a given period of time.

Did you know?

An RRSP can contain a variety of investment products, including mutual funds, stocks, bonds and exchange-traded funds.

---

$44.3 billion — the amount Canadians contributed to their RRSP accounts in 2019.*

---

$3,260 — the median RRSP contribution in 2019.*

---

$1.229 trillion — the total value of assets in RRSP accounts in 2020.**

*Statistics Canada. Registered retirement savings plan contributions, 2019: <https://www150.statcan.gc.ca/n1/daily-quotidien/210309/dq210309c-eng.htm>

**Investor Economics Household Balance Sheet 2021.

It's important to have a solid investment strategy so you can retire comfortably. For more information, please reach out to me directly.

INVESTED IN YOU.

iaprivatewealth.ca

---

iA Private Wealth Inc. is a member of the Canadian Investor Protection Fund and the Investment Industry Regulatory Organization of Canada. iA Private Wealth is a trademark and business name under which iA Private Wealth Inc. operates.